Official SI Description

Supplemental Instruction is held in a series of sessions during the week to review the course material in addition to the lecture and discussions. It has been designed to help students taking historically difficult courses and has been statistically shown to improve students' grades compared to those who never attend supplemental instruction. Students are able to collaborate, ask questions and review concepts that are covered in class in a smaller class setting. SI Leaders are here to facilitate group discussion and help students with the challenging material they encounter.
